Andaman Islands Hit Again by U. S. Bombers

By The Associated Press

NEW DELHI, Dec. 8—U. S. heavy bombers have made another raid on the strategically important Andaman islands in the Bay of Bengal as part of continuing day and night allied air attacks on southern Burma.

Four-engined bombers pounded Japanese installations on Chatham in the Andaman group on Monday, and during the attack shot down one of a group of enemy fighters.

The Andaman islands lie off the lower tip of Burma where they would of necessity figure in any allied offensive plans against the Malay peninsula or Sumatra.

NAZIS RETAKE RED GROUND

Soviet Troops Retire Before Furious Infantry and Tank Assault.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Dec. 8 — One of the most desperate German tank and infantry assaults launched during the seven-weeks' battle for the Kiev bulge has forced the Red army to retire from several towns in that area but Soviet troops have scored important gains elsewhere, a Russian war bulletin said today.

Russian advices said the Nazis had hurled 1,700 tanks into a narrow sector west of Kiev but 53 tanks were lost and they left at least 1,500 dead on the field of battle.

Nazi gains in the Kiev bulge, however, were offset by Russian gains to the south. One Red army column of three driving on Znamenka already was within four miles of the town's gates, the Russian communique indicated. Fall of this strategic rail junction would tend to disrupt the whole German communications and supply system in the vast area below Kiev.

Sixteen German strongholds fell before the Soviet advance below Kremenchug, the communique reported. One of them was the railroad station of Pantayevka, marking a 12-mile gain along the railroad from Alexandriya. Two of the four rail lines serving Znamenka have been severed, leaving only the routes south to Nikolaev and southwest to Kirovograd in Nazi possession. The rail towns of Tsibulevo, 14 miles northwest, and Dimitrovka, seven miles northwest, were captured in Tuesday's opening drive in this sector.

The Russians counted more than 1,000 dead Germans on the blizzard-swept approaches to Znamenka after yesterday's fighting. "A considerable number" of prisoners were taken while three railroad trains complete with supplies fell into Soviet hands. Seventy-five enemy tanks were wrecked—a total of 128 for the day, the communique announced.

Rubber Life Rafts To Be Sole Product of New Marion Plant

Goodrich Officials Hope To Hire First Workers Thursday; Plan To Make 70 Units Daily.

It was officially announced today that the B. F. Goodrich Co. "duration" plant which will be set up here within the next few days will engage totally in the production of rubber life rafts.

The announcement came from Goodrich officials who arrived in Marion yesterday to make arrangements for setting up the plant in the two-story brick building at the southeast corner of North Main and George streets.

Goodrich officials in Marion yesterday were Frank E. Trockle, who will be directly in charge of the Marion plant; Ted Hooper, who will serve here as plant manager; Lee Hurlburt, who will be engineer in charge of the Marion plant; and M. D. Lorentz, who is here to arrange for the hiring of plant personnel.

After conferring with local officials, Mr. Trockle returned to Akron late yesterday afternoon. He is expected back in Marion later this week to supervise initial work in the new plant. Mr. Lorentz has set up headquarters in the United States Employment Service office on East Center street and plans to remain here until the first group of workers are employed. After that he will visit here once a week to interview prospective workers. Both Mr. Hooper and Mr. Hurlburt will remain in Marion.

To Start Work Thursday

Mr. Hooper, in announcing plans for the Marion plant, said the first group of employes will report for work Thursday. Actual production in the plant will not start until around the middle of the month, however, because it will be necessary to train all of the employes in the type of work involved in the construction of the rafts.

The initial group of workers will number about five, Mr. Hooper said. Ten more will report for work on Monday and from then on the number will be increased regularly. He said the peak employment, which is expected to be reached within a month, will include about 200 women.

All but the key personnel of the plant will be hired in the Marion area. In addition to Mr. Hooper and Mr. Hurlburt, an auditor, a scheduler and three plant foremen will move here from Akron.

Start on Top Floor

For the time being at least only the second floor of the large brick building will be used for production by Goodrich, Mr. Hooper said. As soon as large quantities of material owned by the Universal Cooler Corp. are removed from the first floor it will be turned over to production also. For the last several months the building has been used as a warehouse for raw materials by the Universal Cooler Corp.

The type of raft which will be built here is known as Type A-3. The boat when inflated measures about nine feet long and seven feet wide and completely equipped weighs about 80 pounds.

The raft consists principally of 16-inch rubber-covered fabric tubes with a flooring made from the same material as the tubes. Deflated, the boat folds compactly into a relatively small package.

The boat is capable of carrying five men and is equipped with sufficient rations to last five men a week. It also is equipped with fishing tackle, drinking water, flares, oars, sails, tarpaulins, signal equipment, a floating flashlight and repair materials. The boat is inflated by removing a draw-string type of stopper from a small cylinder of carbon dioxide.

In addition, a small quantity of first aid equipment is included in each boat. The medical supplies consists of small quantities of sulfadiazine, boric acid ointment, sulfanilamide, morphine, iodine and two four-inch bandage compresses.

SEAMAN HUSBAND OF MARIONITE KILLED

Harold Bardon of Upper Sandusky Dies on Cruise.

Seaman second class Harold Bardon, 20, husband of Mrs. Evelyn Gompf Bardon of 644 Mary street, native of Little Sandusky and a former employe of the Marion Steam Shovel Co., died at 1:15 a. m. today in Naval Base hospital at Norfolk, Va.

He suffered a head injury while on a cruise off the Virginia coast this week, according to word received here. News of his death came in an official telegram from the Navy department to his mother, Mrs. Myrtle Bardon of Upper Sandusky this morning.

A native of Little Sandusky where he was born July 16, 1923 to Elmer and Myrtle Roses Bardon, he is survived by his widow who makes her home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Gompf of 644 Mary street; his mother, two brothers, Marion and Calvin Bardon, and two sisters, Doris and Mary Alice Bardon of Little Sandusky. His father died in April 1941.

A graduate of Upper Sandusky High school, he entered the service in March this year. He was married to Evelyn Gompf Feb. 14. Following training at the Great Lakes Training station in Illinois he was transferred to Newport, R. I., and a week ago was stationed aboard ship.

Mrs. Bardon, who has been with the service department of the Standard Oil Co. station at Mt. Gilead and was a former employe of the company here, left this afternoon for Upper Sandusky. The body will be taken to the J. T. Lucas funeral home there.

JAPS' RABAUL ACTIVITY LAGS

U. S. Headquarters See Evidence Foe Finding Base Too Hot To Handle.

By The Associated Press

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Dec. 8—A slackening in naval activity observed at Rabaul lent emphasis to day to the official assertion the Japanese are finding their once-proud New Britain island air and sea base too hot to handle.

While allied bombers poured loads of explosives on the invasion-threatened island with incessant fury, a spokesman for Gen. Douglas MacArthur said aerial observation had shown a noticeable drop in naval traffic at Rabaul.

This tied in with the recent declaration of Rear Adm. Robert Carney, chief of staff for Adm. William F. Halsey, the South Pacific fleet commander, that Rabaul, on the northeast coast of the island, is untenable to the Japanese and "we have complete control in the waters."

Rabaul, with its excellent deep-water harbor and six airdromes, is Japan's best base south of Truk, 800 miles away. Its neutralization would constitute a major victory.

A strong force of 100 heavy and medium bombers splattered 150 tons of bombs on New Britain Monday, concentrating the western tip closest to New Guinea.

On New Guinea itself the sharp ground fighting for Wareo on the Huon peninsula remained static as to position but allied bombers raked enemy concentrations. The Australians, supported by tanks, are attempting to clear the Japanese from the strategic Huon peninsula which overlooks the possible invasion strait to New Britain.

Bombers also hit the Japanese on Bougainville around the American beachhead at Empress Augusta bay, smashing supply lines and exploding 48 tons of bombs on an ammunition dump and other targets.

Nine large enemy rafts loaded with supplies were destroyed in New Guinea coastal waters.

Deer Reported Seen in Green Camp Area

Special to The Star

GREEN CAMP — A deer, weighing from 200 to 250 pounds has been seen by Frank Hopkins at his farm home on State Route 203, near Green Camp.

Mr. Hopkins saw the deer in the pasture field with his cattle and it approached very close to the house. When Mr. Hopkins went toward the field the deer jumped the fences and disappeared in the direction of the Scioto river.

Mr. Hopkins said the deer had 18 to 24 inch antlers.

C. D. Russell of west of Green Camp reported seeing a deer Saturday morning. A deer was also seen on the O. E. Thomas farm near Green Camp.

ZANESVILLE PLANT IDLE

By The Associated Press

ZANESVILLE, O., Dec. 8—The American Rolling Mill company's Zanesville plant was idle today as CIO-Steelworkers picketed the main gate in a dispute termed an "entirely unauthorized and spontaneous" strike by Robert Denman, local union president. Denman said the controversy probably involved a company policy concerning workers' seniority rights.

Cairo Conference with Inonu Concluded with Turkey Bound Closely To U. S., Britain, Russia

By The Associated Press

CAIRO, Dec. 8—The [illegible] of Turkish President Ismet Inonu, President Roosevelt [illegible] Minister Churchill was viewed here today as [illegible] significance to the Middle East and Mediterranean [illegible]

Conclusion of [illegible] communique which [illegible] the three government chiefs had examined at length the policy [illegible] were [illegible] by [illegible] The conference was held at Cairo Dec. 4, 5 and 6.

The somewhat vague declarations of friendship and "closest unity" were desired by the [illegible] it was understood, but the fact that the statement [illegible] was regarded as [illegible] significant.

Behind it [illegible] possible [illegible] ranging from [illegible] of Turkish neutrality to cession of air or other bases in less active help.

Harry Hopkins, chairman of the British-American munitions assignments board and President Roosevelt's [illegible], attended the conferences. The Turkish delegation contained no military chiefs.

The best guess in Cairo—and it was a guess based on some supporting information—was that Turkey would not enter actively into the war in the near future, unless a direct cause was given by Germany.

(An Associated Press dispatch from Ankara, written Dec. 4, but not relayed until last night, said "there seems little doubt that the conference is in preparation for Turkish entry into the war, although military action may still be delayed for a couple of months.")

Few here believed the three days of conferences were an empty-handed gesture or that the three government heads did not have something definite in mind in placing the following words in the communique:

"The study of all our problems in a spirit of understanding and loyalty showed that the closest unity existed between the United States of America, Turkey and Great Britain in their attitude toward the world situation. The conversations in Cairo have consequently been most useful and most fruitful for future relations between the four countries concerned."

Red Ambassador Present

The Soviet ambassador to Turkey, Sergei A. Vinogradov, joined most of the sessions but there was no mention of Russia in that part of the communique which declared the existence of "closest unity."

Among the significant events of the conference were two meetings of Inonu and Turkish Foreign Secretary Numan Menemencioglu with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and the British ambassador to Ankara, Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen.

The prevailing opinion on the just-concluded conference seemed to be that although immediate developments will not necessarily follow, President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill would hardly have invited Inonu to Cairo unless they had something definite in mind. And the Turkish president would not have accepted unless he had something to ask and give.

TURKS TO ACT AT RIGHT TIME

Results of Cairo Conference To Be Translated Into Deeds Later.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—Deeds, rather than words, are expected by informed observers here to bring out the full significance of Turkey's newly defined role as an associate of the allies fighting Germany.

The impression gained from the latest Cairo communique is strong that this role is to be one of great importance. At the strategic moment when her help will count most Turkey very probably will enter the war.

Whether that moment is close at hand or in the indefinite future is a question that can be answered only by President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill, President Ismet Inonu of Turkey or their ranking advisers and Russian associates. The world may learn the answer only when it is expressed in action.

That her destiny eventually will lead Turkey into military partnership with the allies is regarded as probable for two reasons—her strategic position in relation to the Balkans and her desire for a full voice in the peace councils.

Alliance Reaffirmed

Significance of the Cairo meeting, announced last night, may be in the reaffirmation of the Anglo-Turkish alliance by the Turkish government not only to the British but to the Americans and Russians as well.

Broadly speaking there are three main avenues of military approach to Germany: (1) across the English channel and through Belgium and northern France, (2) across the Adriatic and through northern Yugoslavia, (3) through the Aegean sea and the Balkans.

Only in the Aegean area have the allies had little hope of successful attack without the cooperation of still another country. For with the Germans entrenched in Greece and in the Aegean islands, Turkey holds the key to a drive in this area.

Airfields on the western rim of Turkey would outflank and make possible the quick conquest of such islands as would have to be taken. Turkey itself is a bridge from Asia to southeastern Europe.

Turkey's role in the events to come may be active, with her army participating in a Balkan offensive, or passive, limited to cession of air bases to the allies and opening Turkish ports to allied troops.

Turks Have 30 Divisions

Active Turkish participation would add an excellent army of perhaps 30 divisions to allied strength. It is, however, an army weak in aircraft, in anti-aircraft and other modern guns, and in motorized equipment.

The British all along have followed a policy of not requesting Turkey to act until they were prepared to give her every assistance with arms and especially air forces.

The British have sent some equipment to Turkey already, but it probably consists largely of small arms. Oddly enough, and indicating German concern over Turkish neutrality, the Nazis are said to have continued their limited shipments of military equipment to Turkey, despite that country's increasingly evident drift toward the allied camp.

The greatest contribution Turkey could make to the allies, however, would be the cession of air-bases and permission to use the Sea of Marmora and its excellent ports, including Istanbul, to land Anglo-American forces for an offensive through the Merich valley into Bulgaria.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 8—More than a million women still must be drawn into the labor field, despite the shutting down of some types of war plants, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins asserted upon her arrival for the tenth national labor conference, opening today.

GIRDLER CITES WAY TO INDUSTRIAL PEACE

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—Industrialist T. M. Girdler said today cooperation between industry and labor was one of "prime requisites of prosperity in the post-war period."

The chairman of Republic Steel Corp. and of Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp., in an address prepared for delivery before the second war congress of the National Association of Manufacturers, outlined these four cornerstones upon which industrial peace might be built:

"1. Recognition of the principle of collective bargaining;

2. Recognition of the right of employes to join or not to join any labor organization;

"3. Scrapping of the 'class conflict' idea in labor management relations and recognition that cooperation between men and management naturally follows mutual understanding of each others' problems;

"4. Incentive for investment and work—a fair return for venture capital, and fair wages for employes."

Girdler said labor leaders should use new-found powers wisely and not ruthlessly because, "if they disregard the rights and interests of others, the pendulum will swing back against them.

"That always happens in this country when any selfish groups get over-powerful," he added. "It happened to great financial interests 50 years ago when they forgot the country in their greed for power."

NAZIS DRIVEN FROM STRONG DEFENSE POSTS

American and British Troops Forge Ahead in Bitter Fighting.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, ALGIERS, Dec. 8—The Allied Fifth army has captured the [illegible] Mt. Camino, routed the Nazis from three villages southwest of Mignano and recaptured [illegible] Monastery ridge overlooking the road to Rome.

Official reports from Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark's headquarters said the enemy has been shoved back to the fringe of ridges on the northern and western edges of Mt. Camino and Mt. Maggiore by the steady, savage thrusts of American and British troops.

The Fifth army's hammer blows through the deep, powerful German winter line toward Cassino were accompanied by fresh gains on the Eighth army's Adriatic coastal sector.

Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's forces crushed repeated Nazi counterattacks, and reported limited advances in the area of the Moro river, where both British tanks and infantry had crossed the stream.

Nazis Losses Heavy

Evidence of severe German casualties in defense of this coastal sector came with discovery that Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring had thrown the 90th armored Grenadier division into line there to relieve the 65th infantry division. The 65th was so badly smashed that one of its battalions lost all its officers, emerging with only a sergeant-major left to command.

Allied medium bombers carried out attacks on Civitavecchia, northwest of Rome, and the important Adriatic port of Pescara. Six enemy planes were shot down in yesterday's operations without loss to the allies.

Every foot gained in the Fifth army's newest advance was yielded only after desperate and costly defense by the Germans. When British troops in sharp battle ousted the Nazis from the summit of Monastery ridge—which the Germans had retaken in a counterattack the day before—they found it littered with German dead. Monastery ridge is one of the foothills leading to the top of Mt. Camino from the south.

Clark's Guns in Command

From positions on all the dominating heights of both Mt. Camino and Mt. Maggiore, Clark's guns now command the southern part of the road and valley between Mignano and Cassino.

The three fortified villages from which Clark's British units knocked the enemy were Camino, Acquapendola, and Cocuruzzo, three to five miles southwest of Mignano.

U. S. medium and fighter bombers yesterday twice attacked Civitavecchia, 45 miles northwest of Rome and principal German supply base on the Italian west coast, but the day's spectacular achievement came when American Spitfires met a dozen Nazi fighters over the battle area, downing six and damaging two more without any American losses.

The planes also dropped food to American troops in virtually inaccessible mountains on the Fifth army front.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY STRIKE POSTPONED

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA, Dec. 8 — E. E. Oster, vice president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, announced today that at the request of the national railway mediation board, a strike of the A. B. & C. railway trainmen, set for 11 p. m. (CWT) tonight had been postponed indefinitely.

Oster said the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen had acted at the "urgent request" of the mediation board.

The union spokesman said Robert F. Cole of the board would arrive in Atlanta tonight, and whether the strike call was reinstated depended on what settlement could be worked out.

"We reserve the right to reinstate the strike call," he said.

The call for the walkout of the 360 trainmen, in protest against the mediation board's decision granting only a four-cent-an-hour increase in their demands for a standard wage, was announced today.

Thomas E. Bickers, secretary of the national mediation board informed B. L. Bugg, president of the road, the unions had advised the board of the strike deadline. The road exclusively serves two ordnance plants, producing munitions for the armed forces, and likewise gives many Georgia and Alabama towns their sole railway service.

Frazier Reams Speaks Before Rotary Club

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, Dec. 8—Frazier Reams, collector of internal revenue for the Toledo, O., district, was guest speaker at the "Ladies Night" meeting of the Rotary club held Monday night at the Bow & Arrow in Upper Sandusky. Distinguished guests included Julius Boh of Ashland, past district governor of this Rotary district, and Mr. and Mrs. Grant E. Waddle of Sandusky. Mr. Waddle is the present district governor.

Mr. Reams declared "Leaders of the allied nations must hold a convention at once to set up a judicial system backed by a strong code of laws or we can not hope to avert future wars or to prosecute the individuals responsible for starting the present global war."

In international relations we are still in the period of the frontier days in this country, he said, "Justice among nations is enforced by the same methods that personal justice was on the frontier. Every nation must keep a large army and navy or pay the price when war comes. Usually they both keep up the armaments and pay the price."

WHEN news of Pearl Harbor was flashed on December 7, 1941, a convoy loaded with planes lay in an eastern port.

Four and a half days later, these planes were on their way to Hawaii from a west coast port.

They had been rushed across the country on flat cars by your railroads.

Telegraph and telephone lines hummed with messages stopping eastbound trains loaded with war supplies and heading them west.

Troop trains were rolling when Congress met the next day for the declaration of war.

In the twelve months following, your railroads handled in special trains and special cars alone more than 11,600,000 troops and their equipment.

Today, your railroads are carrying approximately 2,000,000 members of the military forces a month.

All the necessities of war, plus the essential needs of our civilian population are pouring in a steady stream over the railroads.

Nearly 1,000,000 barrels of oil a day... millions of tons of coal... guns... tanks ... jeeps... trucks... munitions... food ... supplies... all are rolling over the rails.

With the valued help of shippers, the public, and government agencies, Erie and other American railroads are proving they are fast on the draw—in war as in peace — with the world's finest and most economical transportation.

Statewide Network of American Legion Men Serves As Wartime Auxiliary To State Patrol

The accompanying photographs, taken at the Findlay district headquarters of the state patrol, show typical phases of the training program taken by Ohio American Legion members in establishing their statewide auxiliary to the patrol. At the upper left, Cpl. J. F. White of Findlay gives instruction to an auxiliary highway patrolman on desk duty. At the upper right, Cpl. White instructs an auxiliary patrolman at an intersection near Findlay on traffic patrol. Below, Cpl. E. E. Smith of Findlay is giving classroom instruction to auxiliary patrolmen, a scene that has been duplicated in many cities throughout Ohio during the training program.

Ohio's state highway patrol organization today made public the scope of the big volunteer auxiliary organization that has been set up throughout the state through the American Legion to help the patrol deal with any extraordinary emergency situation that might develop in connection with the war.

Marion is shown in today's announcement from the patrol headquarters in Columbus to have had an impressive part in this vast program, which has mobilized and trained 3,115 Ohio war veterans into an efficient auxiliary unit available for call by the patrol wherever and whenever needed. These Ohio volunteers have spent a total of 189,744 hours of classroom work to prepare themselves to function smoothly as an adjunct to the patrol, and to work under patrolmen's direction. They have already spent 127,287 hours in practical work under the patrol's direction.

Marion County's Part

The Marion county phase of this program involves 21 volunteers. A noteworthy fact about the Marion county unit is that its 1,247½ hours of classroom work are substantially surpassed by its 1,611 hours spent in practical work under the direction of patrolmen from the Marion substation of the patrol, located on North Main street. A majority of the county units have not yet amassed a record of practical work that exceeds the hours spent in instruction work.

Marion county's auxiliary was trained in two groups, the first class having been formed Feb. 2, 1942, finishing its work some 15 weeks later. Shortly afterward the second class was formed and it continued for 15 weeks. The auxiliary has been almost constantly active since that time, members riding with patrolmen regularly in evenings and over week-ends as they tour the area served by the substation. Industrial plants and other potential key military objectives are contacted regularly as a precautionary measure.

W. E. Axthelm Captain

The auxiliary organization in Marion county is headed by Walter E. Axthelm as captain. Lieutenants are Roy H. Waddell, L. E. Foreman, Fred P. Haas and J. E. Dutton. Other members of the group are W. L. Arndt, H. F. Baldauf, W. F. Behner, A. C. Cook, W. Don Davis, W. F. Douce, J. Albert Dripps, V. F. Griffith, Curtis Laubner, W. C. Morehouse, C. M. Rogers, L. M. Rengert, Henry Wade, R. A. Todd and J. L. Meredith. Two of the original group of 22 were obliged to drop out because of a conflict between their patrol auxiliary work and their jobs in war work. One man trained for auxiliary membership in another city joined the group when he moved here.

The Marion substation of the patrol, which directs the activities of the auxiliary in Marion county, is headed by Cpl. E. H. Davey. Also at the station are Patrolmen A. V. Smith, J. S. Gibbs and D. F. Roof. Three men have left the substation to enter military service.

Nearby Counties' Record

The scope of the program in counties adjoining Marion is shown in patrol records listing the number of auxiliary members in each county, the number of classroom hours each group spent and the number of practical hours spent in actual service. A summary of the information listed about each county follows:

Crawford—20 members spent 1,232 hours of instruction work at Galion, have given 467 hours of practical work.

Delaware—13 members spent 606 hours of instruction work at Delaware, have given 119 hours of work.

Hardin—11 members took 693 hours of classroom work at Kenton, have given 430 hours of work.

Morrow—25 members spent 1,662 hours of instruction at Mt. Gilead, have given 497 hours of work.

Union—20 members spent 1,080 hours of instruction work at Marysville, have given 431 hours of work.

Wyandot—35 members spent 1,068 hours on instruction at Upper Sandusky, have given 491 hours of work.

State totals—3,115 members have spent 189,744 hours of classroom work and given 127,287 hours of work.

Meet Wartime Need

The need for a large auxiliary force to supplement and assist the state highway patrol in case of a widespread emergency, became a definite home front necessity immediately upon the declaration of war against the Axis powers, state patrol officials pointed out today. Following the declaration of war, the department commander of the Ohio American Legion volunteered the services of the members of his department to the patrol. An auxiliary to the Ohio State Highway Patrol, to be selected entirely from members in good standing from the Ohio department of the American Legion, was decided upon. The following qualifications of American Legion members fitted them as excellent material for such an organization:

1. Leaders in home community.
2. American Legion well organized, guaranteeing a good base for the new organization.
3. American Legion membership widespread, assuring full coverage for all areas of the state.
4. The desire of the Legionnaire to do his part in the emergency.
5. Previous military training of all Legionnaires.

The first organization and enrollment meeting was held in Franklin county Feb. 8, 1942. By April 1, there were 2,650 members attending weekly training classes in every county in the state. The organization has continued to grow and, as of Nov. 15, 1943, had 3,115 trained members. After each class had completed 40 hours of classroom study in patrol procedure and general police subjects, the meetings were reduced to one a month. The total membership is divided into 99 schools, with 189,744 man hours spent in classroom study. The same men have spent 127,287 man hours taking practical training with a patrol officer. This training is comprised of patrol duty, desk duty, and assisting at all types of emergencies such as plane crashes, train wrecks, fires, tornadoes, blackouts, tidal waves, army movements, etc.

Type of Service

This training has enabled the members to render valuable service to the State of Ohio by participating in the following emergencies: 52 military plane accidents, 218 auxiliary units participating, 781 man hours; 12 explosions, fires, tornadoes, 201 units participating, 1,372 man hours; 13 train wrecks, 276 units participating, 2,243 man hours.

In order to assure the availability of all patrol auxiliary members immediately in case of emergency, each member is assigned to one of the 382 patrol auxiliary mobilization points established throughout the state. The member is required to report immediately to his mobilization point upon notification of an emergency or an alert, where he can be directed to the location where he will be most needed. These mobilization points are located in strategic points throughout every county, and the assignment of members is based on proximity to their residence. Every mobilization point is equipped with telephone and a patrol radio receiver to facilitate the dispatching of members.

For easy identification, in addition to their Legion uniforms, the auxiliary patrol members have been issued an auxiliary police armband with the word "Ohio" printed beneath the insignia. They also have a similar insignia for the windshield of their cars, as well as an identification card which is numbered serially and carries the member's picture and description.

Own Advisory Council

The auxiliary patrol is administered by an advisory council comprised of the general headquarters staff and the district supervisors of the state highway patrol, and a past department commander of the American Legion selected from each patrol district. The advisory council acts as a board of directors and formulates the policies of the auxiliary units from the standpoint of the two departments.

A complete record of the activities of every auxiliary patrol member, including classroom and practical training attendance, is kept. Members absent from meetings without excuse are dropped from the rolls. The members, while on duty, are under the same regulations as patrol officers. In case of violation of any of the rules of conduct or of duty, the member is subject to dismissal.

The membership of the patrol auxiliary is drawn from all walks of life. The following recapitulation by occupation of the members gives an idea of the cosmopolitan nature of the organization.

Professional men, 301; merchants, 409; white-collar workers, 704; public employes, 358; factory workers, 354; skilled workers, 510; unskilled workers, 81; farmers, 227; others, 81.

Pay Ordinance Approved by Crestline Council

Special to The Star

CRESTLINE, Dec. 8—A pay ordinance of $1,987.90 was allowed when village council met in regular session Monday.

There was a lengthy discussion in regards to lights at the South Thoman street crossing of both the Pennsylvania and Big Four railroads. It is to be requested to put stronger electrical lights near the track and also to have two night watchman on duty to protect all tracks.

R. H. Saum of the Nessels Creamer company was present and asked council to repair the alley adjoining the creamery building. Engineer Weirman was ordered to get an estimate of repairs needed.

GALION POWER PLANT WORKERS ASK RAISE

Special to The Star

GALION, Dec. 8—[illegible] requesting a [illegible] wage increase for employes of the Galion municipal light and power plant had its first reading at the regular meeting of council Tuesday and was referred to the finance committee.

Mayor William [illegible] explained that an increase in wages for light plant employes was not advisable at this time because the plant is selling power at a loss as a result of the increase in coal prices and other conditions. He said that a raise could not be given until rates are studied and probably adjusted. This brought considerable discussion from plant employes who were present at the meeting.

Council also received a petition with seven signers asking that the Mackey alley be opened straight through from South street to Riblet street. This was referred to the street and alley committee.

An ordinance was passed by council providing that certain claims be paid, among them for the [illegible] purchase of concrete pipe and [illegible] material was passed immediately before [illegible] be taken. The claims totaled $413.5[illegible]

PILES

Without Knife, Drugs, or Loss of Time from work. Written Guarantee.

DANGER IN NEGLECT

No one should ever think of piles (hemorrhoids) as a "mild" disorder.

Although they may seem a "mild" ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formations without tendency to heal themselves. Instead, they are likely, if neglected, to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting, predisposing to or aggravating other ailments, such as indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in the back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its rundown tired feeling, and general nervous irritability.

If, therefore, you are distressed by what you have regarded as only a "mild" case of piles, do not, by any means, allow that to be a reason for neglecting them.

Removal of the piles is the only positive cure. This can be done without knife, drugs or loss of time from work.

"Silent Night"

The battle is over.

The bomb-shattered village is deserted, lifeless.

And the silence that greets our invading men is deathly. It's the kind of grim stillness many of them will know on Christmas Eve this year.

Not like the warm, beautiful "Silent Night" we know. Not like the peace in our homes the night before Christmas.

But the only way we can have some peace in our hearts is to know that we're helping bring our men back. Actually helping by buying all the War Bonds we possibly can. And by giving all the War Bonds we possibly can.

For no other gift could mean so much this year . . . no other gift could do so much good.

In War Bonds, lies the spirit of Christmas.

Committee Reports on Tour of Central, South America

The Associated Press

[illegible]TON, Dec. 8 — A [illegible]mmittee just back [illegible] inspection tour of [illegible] bases in Central [illegible] America reported yes[illegible] "good neighbor" policy [illegible] mutual benefits [illegible] the western hemi[illegible] stated that "bung[illegible] amateur goodwill" [illegible] in some instances [illegible] planning.

[illegible] inspectors laid [illegible] suggest[illegible] late planning for [illegible] relation[illegible] countries to the [illegible]

[illegible] a house military [illegible] committee headed by [illegible] (D-NY), found [illegible] defense plans had [illegible] very and zealously [illegible] and that "an en[illegible] degree of cooperation [illegible] ceived from our neigh[illegible] in this work."

But, said the committee, "we must stress the fact that the unsettled questions about the future utilization of American-built bases are vital and pressing ones whose disposition should not longer be delayed." This was accompanied by a recommendation the United States act "now toward 'getting its house in order for post-war commercial enterprise."

Works Both Ways

The report, stating that "the good neighbor policy has been highly profitable to our friends and advantageous to us," followed by less than two weeks a statement by Senator Butler (R-Neb) that U. S. aid to Latin American countries was "naively conceived and badly coordinated boondoggling."

Butler, who made an independent 20,000 mile tour of Central and South American countries, told the senate the "good neighbor" policy was based on "sentimental dreams," that in some Latin countries "they laugh at us for being suckers."

Merritt's group criticized some U. S. federal agencies "which in nearly every country appear to get under each other's feet in the scramble to advance their respective interests" and noted at one point:

"There is a great need for coordination of effort and singleness of purpose. Bungling tactics by amateur goodwill emissaries who bid against each other have created confusion and injured American standing.

"As one illustration of poor planning, the subcommittee was advised that BEW (board of economic warfare) once sought to develop a number of airports for the rubber trade, bringing in great quantities of supplies and high priority equipment for this purpose.

"Actually the development of airports along the upper reaches of the Amazon is a tremendous undertaking, and not at all necessary. * * *

Field Men Praised

"Informed persons speak highly of the work done by the field men and prospectors sent out by federal agencies. Their criticism is directed at the officers and technical experts sent out by Washington, at the regulations and paper work requirements, and at the frequent changes in personnel."

The Merritt committee, which left Washington Nov. 3, traveled 14,567 miles in three weeks by air, going as far south as Rio De Janeiro.

Its report was turned over to the full military committee yesterday. The comment was prepared jointly by all members of the trip—Rep. Costello (D-Calif), Brooks (D-La), Durham (D-NC) Sikes (D-Fla), Winstead (D-Miss), Short (R-Mo) and LeRoy Johnson (R-Calif).

Defensive Air Show

THE conception of offensive air power now is firmly established. Vast fleets of heavy bombers sweeping over enemy targets no longer exist only in the imagination. They have been in operation. Millions of Europeans know about offensive air power as a fact, not a theory.

The conception of defensive air power still is not clear, despite British success in meeting the German bombing attacks of 1940-41. It is not well understood that German bombers at that time met their match in British fighters. At least it is not understood well enough to suggest that Germany, dealing with the better bombers in use by Great Britain and the United States, might have similar success in its attempt to develop an adequate defense against air power. The toll now being taken of British night raiders, previously considered relatively immune from attacks by fighters, and the necessity of revising the tactics of United States daylight raiders affirm an important degree of success.

It is a fixed law of war that every new weapon produces a counter-weapon. The dreadnaught produced the submarine. The submarine produced the destroyer. Armor-piercing shells produced armor too thick to pierce, which produced better shells, which produced better armor. The machine gun produced the tank, and the tank produced the tank destroyer and the portable rocket gun for destroying both of them. To imagine that air power alone of all the weapons of war cannot be offset by defenses is foolish. Germany may not have the answer, but it is far from helpless. It has come a long way from the stage when its destruction from the air seemed to wait only on Allied ability to accumulate enough planes to do the job.

Will Subsidies Stop Rising Wages?

CHESTER BOWLES, OPA administrator, testifying before the senate banking committee, says farm price subsidies are needed to keep the "little steel" formula from blowing up. Meanwhile, as he must know, since it has been published from coast to coast and discussed exhaustively ever since the Ickes deal with United Mine Workers, the "little steel" formula is being marked for destruction by every labor leader with a following.

In the steel unions, there is a well organized drive afoot to get rid of the formula in new wage contracts without waiting to see what happens to the subsidy issue. If Mr. Bowles and other government spokesmen trying to convince congress the alternative lies between subsidies and continued demands for higher wages could convince labor's spokesmen first, they would have a talking point.

Farm bloc leaders, opposing subsidies, start from the assumption that wage inflation is not going to stop. They can find nothing in the government's record to indicate that its policy on wages is anything else—from payment of overtime rates on war contracts and imposition of compulsory overtime by the 48-hour week order on business in general to the Ickes deal with the miners, which broke the "little steel" formula by the subterfuge of allowances giving miners more pay outside the formula, itself. They believe the organized labor minority has the power and the intent to go beyond the formula at will, price subsidies to the contrary notwithstanding. They suspect, moreover, that an administration which never has shown any inclination to run contrary to the labor minority in a showdown is not going to change its character on the eve of a national campaign in which its hopes are pinned squarely on the labor vote.

The Fedora

THE President of the United States is conspicuous in the picture from Teheran for his lack of a military uniform. Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill were "dressed up." Stalin, who is noted for the informality of his apparel, attracted special attention by his spruceness.

Mr. Roosevelt probably could have a uniform, though one never has been designed specifically for the office. But that would not be an insurmountable obstacle, if a chief executive wanted a uniform.

It just so happens that the nation's chief executives have not thought they needed a special uniform, aside from the ledger-ruled trousers, frock coats and silk hats worn in recent years on ceremonial occasions. They have distinguished themselves, on the contrary, by such civilian idiosyncrasies as Mr. Roosevelt's fedora and Herbert Hoover's choker collar. Granting the right—and the need—of the heads of the governments to appear in uniforms on special occasions, Americans are pleased with the thought that Mr. Roosevelt's unadorned fedora is just as unmistakable a symbol of authority and dignity in the lands it visits as it would be if it had gold braid on it.

So They Say—

None of America's economic groups is self-sufficient. We are dependent upon each other. All the millions of us are consumers—each other's customers.—National Planning Association committee agreement.

Americans are concerned with reconstruction of the world. I plan the reconstruction of Germany. The reconstruction of the world will not happen.—Adolf Hitler.

News Behind the News

Considerable Skepticism Remains in Spite of Harmony at Teheran.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8.—The congressional cheering over the Teheran announcements ran little beyond the number of decibels to be expected at such events—a fact which is all revealing of the common inner interpretation accepted here.

As all have been saying, the announcements present a picture of a friendly family agreement on all questions between Roosevelt, Stalin, and Churchill, which marks great progress and raises great hopes. True also, a number of question-marks in the Hull Moscow agreements were erased.

Mr. Roosevelt got in a mention of freedom from fear and want, which previously had been missing, and heavier emphasis was laid at last upon the Atlantic charter ideals of democracy with free choice of governments by all peoples.

Many Still Skeptical

All the principles, therefore, are now agreed in words, at least. But, as the congressmen and all studious, unprejudiced observers of diplomacy here could see, not even the slightest mention of how these principles are going to be obtained in action was evident in the announcements. Skepticism remains.

There are some who believe Mr. Roosevelt has really worked out a common understanding on the most troublesome questions such as Poland, Finland, conflicts of ideology, and that he will return to run for a fourth term on that platform. No congressional authorities had any private information to substantiate this conclusion—or any to disprove it either.

Consequently, the common interpretation merely hopefully accepted the promises as excellent allied propaganda to strike fear in Germany, promote hope at home, and particularly among the smaller exiled governments which have been left out in the cold of all publicity lately.

Subsidy Subsides

The food subsidy fight seems to be cooling. The alternatives offered are both undersirable. The idea of paying secret price increases out of the treasury of the United States in order to conceal them from the public is a policy which the administration has attempted to justify only on the grounds of necessity of avoiding a greater evil—wage increases and more direct price inflation. Some commentators have attempted to describe it as tax on "economic income," but it is far more than that. It is a levy against all people who pay taxes.

The opposition wants higher prices, which is likewise an undesirable goal for the great majority of the people who pay them.

But, of course, the truth is you are going to get higher prices anyway with or without subsidies, because of a dominant controlling inner economic situation pressing toward that conclusion (the current pending bill involves only the few commodities on which subsidies are already being paid.)

The administration has not shown strong interest in compromising the matter, even though a congressional majority is obviously against subsidy continuance. War Mobilizer Byrnes went on the air in defense of the administration program even in the face of coming defeat.

Roosevelt To Win

They all know very well that Mr. Roosevelt will veto the bill, that it cannot be passed over a veto, and that Mr. Roosevelt will get his subsidies anyway by plucking the money from the bottomless bag of revolving funds under the custody of the New Deal's extracurricular banker, Jesse Jones.

The subsidy opposition fears that if congress approves the administration plan—and even if not—Mr. Roosevelt may expand it into a new spending program as a means of reelection. They suspect it could be developed to more and more commodities, thereby pleasing the particular parties involved, at the expense of the nameless, unorganized, and remote mass of people. To do so, he would have to justify it on better grounds than he has so far offered.

Correction

In this column last Friday, the peculiar Canol oil deal was ascribed to the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. As every news reader knows—or should—the Standard Oil Company of California was involved. No harm, therefore, was done, but the Indiana company wanted a correction, and here it is.

Etiquette of War

By Herman R. Allen
Washington Correspondent.

WASHINGTON—War is supposed to be fought according to "international law."

But it isn't...for a very simple reason.

The reason is that the international laws of war are little more than a code of etiquette. The only real force keeping a warring nation from violating them is fear of reprisals. This explains why the German are so careful about the treatment of prisoners and why they have been so ruthless in submarine warfare. They have few merchant ships of their own which could be lost by reprisals.

In the broad sense international law is a code built up from centuries of custom regulating the commercial, diplomatic and military relations of civilized nations.

The military regulations are contained for the most part in the Hague Convention of 1899. They have been supplemented from time to time, principally by the Geneva Convention of 1906, the Hague Convention of 1907, the Washington Treaty of 1922 and the Geneva Protocol of 1925.

Provisions Listed

These are some of the main provisions of the laws of war:

It is forbidden to use poison, poisoned arms, poison gas or virulent bacteria.

It is forbidden to kill or wound a surrendered enemy, to declare "no quarter," to use arms causing unnecessarily severe wounds, to make improper use of flags of truce or the red cross emblem, to attack a city which has been declared "open" or undefended, to pillage any place even if taken by assault.

Hospitals and religious, artistic, scientific and charitable institutions must be spared as much as possible unless they are used for military purposes. But it is up to the home team to mark such buildings and notify the enemy where they are.

Unanchored mines are prohibited unless they become harmless within an hour after passing from control of the side which plants them. Anchored mines must become harmless if they break loose, and torpedoes if they miss their mark.

Submarines must desist from attacking merchant vessels if they cannot remove crew and passengers to safety.

Public Safety

It is the responsibility of the occupying power to maintain public safety in occupied territory. Property or labor may not be requisitioned except for the necessities of the army of occupation. Requisitions must be in proportion to the resources of the community and must not involve the population in military activity against their own country. Requisitioned goods must be paid for immediately or else a receipt given and the money paid as soon as possible.

Enemy ships are liable to capture on the high seas or in enemy waters. Ships on the way home when war is declared are exempt, and time is allowed ships in enemy harbors to make a getaway. Ships on religious, scientific or philanthropic missions are exempt.

Prisoners of war must be humanely treated, and protected from abuse. Enlisted men may be put to work on public or private projects. If the work is for the national government, they must be paid the same rates as soldiers of that government. If for a private employer, at a rate agreed with military authorities. They must be fed, clothed and housed as well as soldiers. Newspaper correspondents, contractor's employes and others may be "assimilated" into an army and are then subject to the same treatment as soldiers if captured. Relief societies such as the International Red Cross must be permitted access to prisoners. Letters, packages and money orders must be delivered to prisoners postage and duty free.

There is no provision for treatment of interned civilians.

Hospital Ships

Ambulances, hospitals and hospital ships must be "respected and protected under all circumstances." Such establishments or vehicles or ships must show the red cross emblem at all times. So must stretcher-bearers.

Spies may not be executed without trial. Scouts in uniform or civilians or soldiers openly delivering a message to their own army or the enemy are not regarded as spies. A spy who rejoins his own army and is later captured is not liable to treatment as spy.

Civilians who resist invasion are subject to protection if they are commanded by a person responsible for them, wear an emblem recognizable at a distance, carry arms openly and observe the laws of war.

"Firefly glass" is made of synthetic resin.

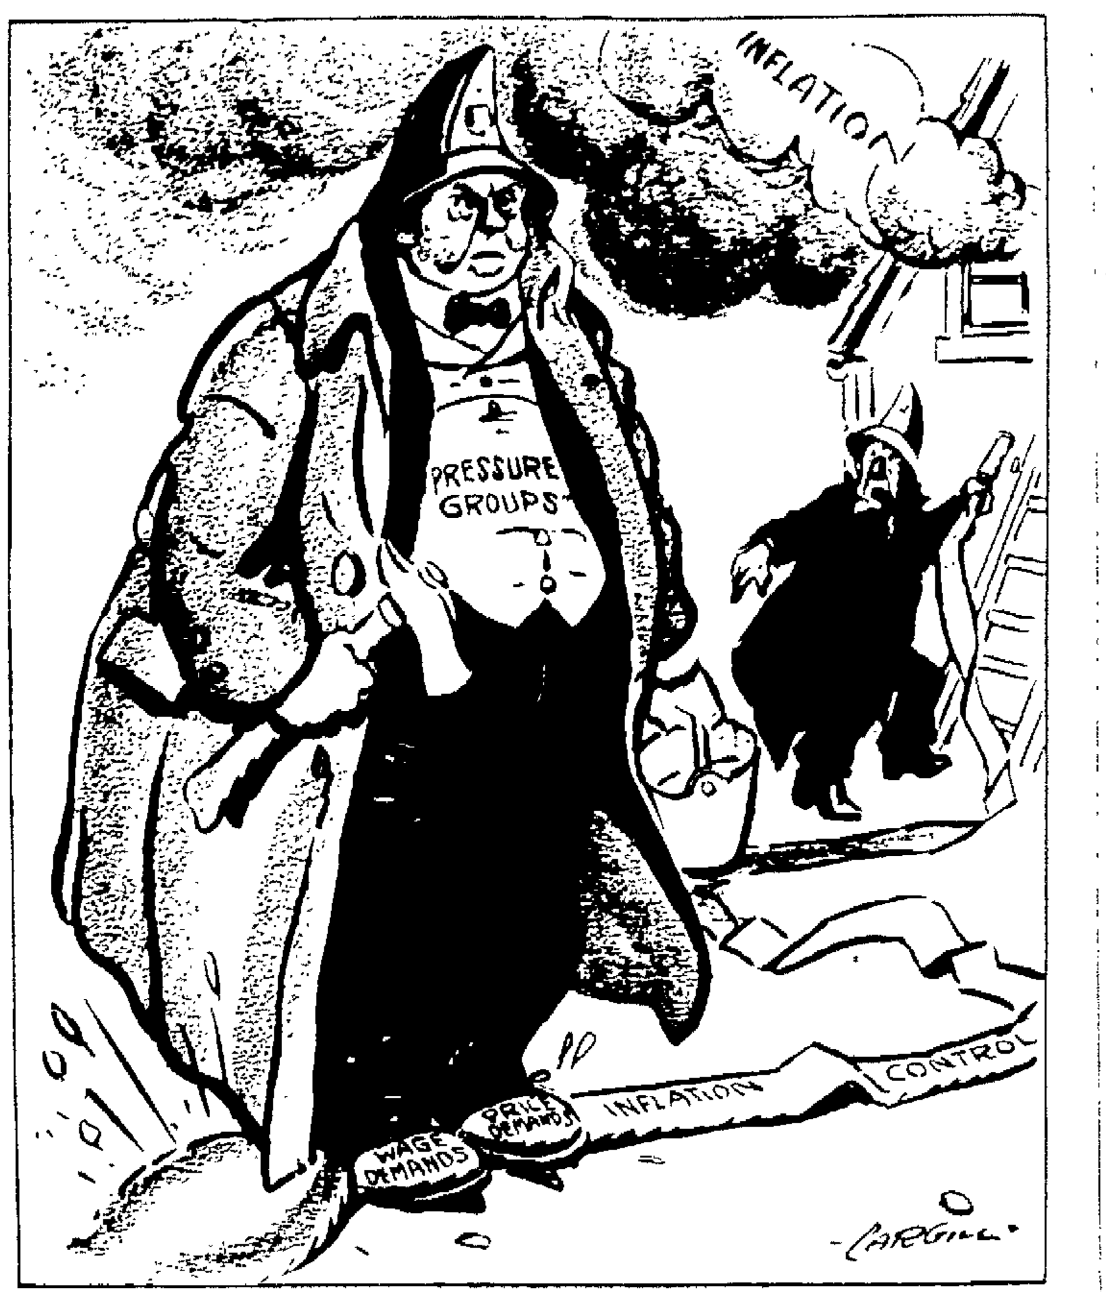
WRONG KIND OF PRESSURE



500,000,000 Persons in Japan's Empire

Cairo Declaration Would Strip It of All Seized Possessions.

THE intention to de-loot Japan, announced by the three-power agreement at Cairo, will make Japanese maps of 50 years ago useful again. Japan's first big "steal" was from China in 1895—Formosa and the Pescadores islands.

Today the Japanese empire holds dominion over one-fourth of all the people on the earth—500,000,000 persons in an area of 3,000,000,000 square miles. Only lack of perspective has blinded Americans to the fact they are dealing no longer with a "little Japan," but a sprawling empire with abundant natural resources and the world's greatest potential supply of cheap labor.

Japan was a miscellancy of medieval agricultural islands in 1854, when President Fillmore and Commodore Perry lifted the lid of an Oriental Pandora's box. For 223 years no Japanese had been permitted to leave the island's atmosphere of feudalism.

CHINA'S first losses to Japan followed the Sino-Japanese war of 1894-95. Tropical Formosa (Taiwan), an island area nearly twice as large as New Jersey, in addition to welcome supplies of minerals, tea, sugar and rice, gave Japan until recently a virtual world monopoly of camphor. Now the island supports three million people, about 5 per cent of them Japanese.

Along with these island acquisitions Japan wrested from China a toehold on the continent of Asia. China agreed to consider Korea (Chosen) an independent state and ceded the tip of the nearby peninsula of Liaotung, site of the important leased area of Kwantung and of the ports now known as Dairen and Ryojun. At that time Ryojun (Port Arthur) was extensively used by Russia when more northern ports were frozen over. Russia growled at the prospect of Japanese encroachment on Asia's mainland; so Japan hastily sold back the Liaotung peninsula to China.

Russia's influence in Asia irritated the Japanese, particularly Russian refusal to remove troops from Manchuria on given dates after the Boxer rebellion and its seizure of Port Arthur on the Kwantung peninsula.

In the 18-month struggle Japan emerged as a formidable naval power by destroying the Russian fleet, to the astonishment of the occidental powers. It was their first evidence of the problem they had created by introducing modern machinery to a nation with a strong aggressor instinct.

The war was terminated through the mediation of President Theodore Roosevelt of the United States. A peace treaty signed in Portsmouth, N. H., in 1905, recognized Japanese authority over Korea and the leased Kwantung area. It threw in for good measure the southern half of Sakhalin island, which Japan had renounced 30 years before. Most important of all, in the light of subsequent developments, it gave to Japan recognition of "paramount political, military and economic interests" in Korea, thereby establishing its claim to authority over mainland territory. Korea quickly fell into the bag and was formally annexed to the empire in 1910.

This first Japanese colony on mainland Asia constitues a rich one third of the area of Japan's empire proper (as distinguished from occupied countries). Its peninsular area, 85,000 square miles, nearly equals that of Great Britain, and supports 22 million people of whom only 3 per cent are Japanese. Rice, soybeans, cotton, gold, coal, iron, and other minerals have been taken from Korea to nourish Japan's people and war industries.

JAPAN'S next expansive spurt was released by World war I and an Anglo-Japanese treaty, by which England and Japan were allied to protect each other's interests in the Far East. With Britain at war, Japan also declared war against Germany and proceeded to take over all German-controlled territory in the Far East north of the equator. The German-governed Pacific islands of the Marshall, Marianas, and Caroline groups thus came into Japanese hands.

Under the mandate, Japan received control of some 600 coral atolls, many of them consisting of circles of disconnected islets surrounding central lagoons. Their total land area does not exceed 830 square miles; their pre-war population was approximately 50,000. Yet, they have been incalculably useful to Japanese war lords in providing such bases as Yap in the west and Truk in the east in the Caroline group; Jaluit farther east in the Marshall islands; and Rota in the Marianas, not 50 miles north of Guam.

IN 1931 Japan's tentacles reached out again to the mainland of Asia, this time to Manchuria, which she invaded and conquered within two years. The puppet state of Manchukuo was set up in this territory, and Japan followed up the Manchurian invasion with a series of demands upon China that eventually cut off China's border provinces and led, finally, to war with China on July 7, 1937.

During the next three years Japan occupied most of the coastal region of China and conquered enough of the interior to force the Chinese government to retire to Chungking. Meanwhile, she was pressing southward. She took advantage of the fall of France to move into French Indo-China with permission of the Vichy government, and finally, after Pearl Harbor, beat down through Malaya, Burma, the Netherlands East Indies, Melanesia and the Philippines.

That part of the Japanese empire which the Cairo pledges would take from Japan amounts to 604,456 square miles, with an estimated population of 69,102,594. It includes:

	Area	Population
Manchuria	503,013	39,454,026
Korea	85,246	22,633,857
Kwantung	1,438	1,656,726
Formosa	13,880	5,212,426
Pescadores Is.	50	60,000
Mandated Is.	829	85,559
Totals	604,456	69,102,594

The Fight Is On

Veterans' Organization [illegible] Early Evidence That Veterans Will Have To Stand on Rights.

By DAMON RUNYON

SOME of my readers feel my [illegible] bodings on the future of the [illegible] this war are exaggerated in view of [illegible] promises of the administration to [illegible] care of the boys.

Let me tell you that in the very [illegible] these promises the most extraordinary [illegible] veterans already are taking place. The dismal prospect of neglect that confronted discharged heroes of our past wars confronts the warriors of Tunisia, Sicily and the Pacific.

I do not ask you to take my word. I present herewith a letter from an official organization of veterans that makes a [illegible] of inquiring into matters of this nature and is, indeed, dedicated to the task of [illegible] protect the interests of all veterans.

I refer to the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States. The man who wrote is M. C. Herman of San Francisco, [illegible] of the department of California. You [illegible] by reading his letter that all the evils of government disregard of fighting men after fighting days are over, against which [illegible] been campaigning, are again in evidence.

Those once disillusioned no longer [illegible] promises. On the contrary, they [illegible] I do, the trend toward the same repudiation of solemn word passed to the men in [illegible] today that has been the experience of veterans of all our wars. Here is the letter.

Nov. 2, 1943.

"DEAR MR. RUNYON: It is superfluous to tell you that the veterans of the nation firmly concur in your expressions as outlined in your column. We vividly recall the days of 1933 when the infamous economy act was passed and became law. We are not gullible enough to believe that future attacks against government appropriations for war veterans' benefits are not now being prepared by such organizations as the National Economy league and representatives of the large taxpayer groups. We fully realize the grand strategy is being planned now to compel future legislation which would repudiate every promise made to the veterans of our nation.

"The vicious practice of compelling boys being returned from our battle fronts because of disabilities and health imperfections to sign waivers disclaiming any right on their part to file for compensation is one very fine example of what is being planned in the future for these veterans. We have been given to understand that the rating boards of the veterans' administration throughout the country do not consider these waivers in the adjudication of cases now before them, but the fact remains that the disclaimers become part of the veterans' folder and undoubtedly will be introduced as valid evidence in future reviews of awards made now and in cases later to come before rating boards for adjudication.

"We have been in receipt of hundreds of complaints from boys in hospitals and discharge centers, depicting the abuse and compulsion to which they are subjected in order that these waivers be signed before discharge. Who, I ask, is responsible for this un-American practice? Could it be the forces inimicable to the best interests of our disabled veterans?

"The Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States has dedicated itself to a program designed to protect the interests of all veterans, and I assure you, will vigorously combat [illegible] unfair practice as the one outlined in this letter. It is very true that out of this war will come many millions of veterans who because of their numbers, should be able to protect themselves. Their ability, however, to do so is contingent upon their ability to organize and present a solid front.

"Since this war started, the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United State, nationally, have affiliated over 200,000 members now in the armed forces overseas. I say with assurance that the veterans of this war are cognizant of the problems ahead of them and realize the utmost necessity for their affiliation with established veteran groups whom they know have their best interests at heart; consequently, to us, your article is most timely and serves to warn all veterans to gird themselves for the unjust fight ahead.

"We deeply appreciate your sentiments as expressed and your friendly attitude to those who have born the brunt of battle."

Sincerely.
Dept. Quartermaster - [illegible]

What Can We Say?

By Truman Twill

One of the penalties for living with women is having to say something about their hats. Men do not understand women's hats, never have, never will. Yet, women are always [illegible] their latest head-piece in front of [illegible] asking, "What do you think of it?"

What we think of it, ladies, doesn't [illegible] and you know it. You don't even want to [illegible] what we think. You just want us to [illegible] stunning. It's the most becoming hat you've [illegible] had! It's certainly a lot prettier than that monstrosity whats-her-name is scaring people [illegible] I'm tickled to death. Why don't you have [illegible] picture taken in it? Why it takes 10 years off your age!"

And even then unless we put our [illegible] the gasping and throw ourselves on the [illegible] ecstasy, all you do is sniff. "I might have [illegible] you'd be sarcastic. You're always sarcastic. [illegible] just don't have any respect for a girl's [illegible] that's all. But before I married you, [illegible] gagged over my hats until it was funny. [illegible] brute!" And then flounce out of the room.

But that doesn't keep you from [illegible] again when you get another hat. And [illegible] performance is repeated. What are we [illegible] to do? If we just look up casually and [illegible] all right, then we're not paying attention. [illegible] look at it closely and suggest it might look better if you'd wear it more to one side or [illegible] around, you freeze up and snow all over [illegible] we ask what it cost, you launch into [illegible] complicated half-truths and accuse [illegible] having any confidence in you.

If we snicker, which we sometimes [illegible] we are, after all, only human, you [illegible] the shins. If we don't say anything [illegible] the theory that is the safest way out, [illegible] us to death. If we just glance at it [illegible] mumble something non-committal, [illegible] rude. Or if we say, "No kidding, [illegible] probably pick out the funniest looking [illegible] Queen Mary," the next order of business [illegible] custody of the children.

Why don't you let us alone? We [illegible] what you wear on your heads any [illegible] we can help what kind of weather [illegible] willing to grin and bear your hats. We always have, haven't we? And our [illegible] before us. They couldn't do anything [illegible] women's hats, and we can't do anything [illegible] yours. So why not skip it? Personally, [illegible] you'd look good in a nice wool [illegible] settle for whatever else you pick [illegible] is likely to be almost anything.

F/Lt. Collins, likewise, has been [illegible] in World war II. But most [illegible] experiences were as an air raid warden during the years of the Battle of Britain. He served as a civilian warden in his home town of Hythe in Kent county, [illegible] 10 miles from Dover, bloody target of merciless German bombers.

During the more than two years in which he served Britain's war [illegible] from a civilian standpoint, more than 1,300 alerts were undergone by the residents of the Dover district. But, of course, a good deal of the warnings were more than just alerts. Hythe was [illegible] when just as were so many other English communities.

On Bombing Route

Hythe, F/Lt. Collins explains, was directly on one of the enemies' main paths to London, the English interior and the industrially-important west coast cities. Because of this fact naturally it, too, received the full wrath of the German air might at times during the height of the Battle of Britain.

F/Lt. Collins remarked: "But despite the terror of day-in-day-out bombing it's remarkable the reactions of the English who decidedly at this time were on the defensive."

Explaining his statement he referred to an incident which occurred while he was serving as an air raid warden. His story goes something like this:

Shortly after one of the biggest raids a report was received by the defense headquarters in Hythe. According to the report the home of a Hythe couple was struck directly by an enemy bomb. At the time the report was received it was unknown whether or not the couple were killed, injured or safe.

Calls for Tea

"Upon investigating we found the man lying in some bushes at the back of the house. The woman was found later in the basement of the wrecked residence, the house having toppled in. Neither was seriously injured. The woman's first request was for a cup of tea.

"I went to the nearest canteen, obtained the tea and returned to the shattered home. After tasting the tea, she immediately objected. 'It's too strong.'

"People do react oddly, even during bombing attacks," F/Lt. Collins concluded.

Before his enlistment, F/Lt. Collins was in the chain store business. Prior to that he was engaged in banking. He's now 35.

Shortly after he enlisted he was assigned to a school alike in many ways to the officer's candidate school of our own Army. He graduated from the British O. C. S. in April of 1941 as a pilot officer, equivalent to the rank of second lieutenant in the American Army or air force. His present rating as Flight Lieutenant is equivalent to the rank of captain in the U. S. Army.

PAY FOR BOND ADS VIRTUALLY KILLED

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—The house ways and means committee today killed, in effect, legislation which would have authorized paid newspaper advertising to promote the sale of war bonds.

The vote in executive session was announced as 11 to 10.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) said the action was to table the legislation, which had the effect of killing the bill. He said, however, that someone probably would introduce another such bill.

Three bills, one of them passed last month by the senate, were affected by the committee action. The senate bill provided for the expenditure of $15,000,000 for advertisements in daily, weekly, semi-weekly and tri-weekly papers published in cities having population of not more than 10,000. Two house bills would have authorized the expenditure of $30,000,000 to be "equitably distributed" among newspapers having second-class mailing privileges.

"I'd say we killed all three bills," Doughton told reporters. "I guess somebody could introduce another bill if they wanted to but I don't know."

LIQUOR DEPARTMENT UNDER NEW ATTACK

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 8—[illegible] had a [illegible] rationing [illegible] the liquor control board or [illegible].

A [illegible] Monahan [illegible] demanded [illegible] before the [illegible] permitted to buy in any ration period liquor [illegible].

Reporting himself a non-drinker but acting in the public interest, Monahan said he tried three times in November to buy liquor which a retail store [illegible] was told it was not on sale when he applied and the November ration period expired before he could get it.

Monahan termed a "[illegible]" Liquor Director Don Fisher who sets ration periods and the amount of spirits which a ration card holder can buy. Scarcity of liquor made rationing necessary to spread the available stocks as far as possible among the buying public, Fisher has said.

The liquor monopoly law directs the board to make regulations and hear appeals from the director's decisions. The board also holds four public hearings a year to ascertain public reaction to the monopoly's operation.

Monahan told the board it should be abolished "since the director can operate as he sees fit."

Board Chairman Harry E. Hawley said the board would not comment on Monahan's remarks in the absence of a written complaint. Monahan declared "I'll make the complaint, but the people who lost their liquor won't benefit."

An attorney general's opinion on whether the board can consider such an appeal for rationing changes may be sought if Monahan files a complaint, liquor department officials indicated.

Neffner Loses Fight To Regain State Job

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 8—George M. Neffner lost his supreme court action today to compel Secretary of State Edward J. Hummel to reinstate him as statistician and editor in the secretary's office, a post from which Hummel removed him soon after taking office last January.

The court held Neffner had lost his civil service status by not taking a competitive examination after serving as secretary of state by appointment following the death of Secretary Earl Griffith late in 1942.

Hummel, on taking office as secretary, claimed Neffner's position for personal exemption because the duties he expected to assign to Neffner's position were of an intimate fiduciary character.

CHETNIKS TO FIGHT SLAV PARTISANS

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 8—The Zurich correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported today Gen. Draja Mihailovic had issued a proclamation declaring his Chetniks would fight the partisan forces of Gen. Josip Broz (Tito) as enemies of the Yugoslav government in exile.

The partisans on Saturday announced establishment of a provisional government within Yugoslavia in opposition to King Peter's government-in-exile. It is headed by Dr. Ivan Ribar, with Tito chairman of a new committee for national defense.

The Zurich correspondent, who said he was a personal friend of Mihailovic, asserted he had received a letter from the Chetnik leader stating:

"We never attacked the partisans except in cases when my people attacked them for plundering, but when these partisans officially stand against King Peter, we see in them our enemies the same as the Germans, Italians, Bulgarians, and the troops of Nazi puppet Premier Milan Nedic.

LIFE RAFTS

manufactured here is standard equipment aboard the larger Army aircraft, Goodrich officials said. Smaller rafts for one or two persons are carried in fighter-type planes.

Printed on the outside of small metal cans in which are contained rations is the following note: Life Raft Ration. Candy, chewing gum and vitamin tablets. The food in this can will feed five or six men for one day or one man for 5 or 6 days. It should be saved for later, if fish are caught.

"Do not open another can until contents of this can are gone, as candy and vitamin tablets must not get wet."

Goal Is 70 a Day

Mr. Hooper, who as plant manager will be directly in charge of production activities in Marion, said when peak employment is reached about 70 rafts will be manufactured daily. He said that the type of raft to be made in Marion will not be produced in any other Goodrich plant. He said just as many persons employed in this type of production in Akron will be hired here.

Production of this type of raft will be suspended within the next few days in Akron as a means of relieving an acute manpower shortage there. Marion was selected as the site for the plant because of favorable housing conditions and because of the availability of workers as a result of the closing of the Scioto Ordnance Plant.

Mr. Hooper has been affiliated with Goodrich for 24 years and since the outbreak of the war has served as general foreman of the raft building project and other inflatable rubber products.

In the near future Mr. Hooper plans to establish a residence in Marion for his wife and two children.

One of the type of rafts that will be built here was brought from Akron yesterday by Mr. Hooper and is now on display in the Chamber of Commerce office on North State street.

JAN. 1 PROCLAIMED AS DAY OF PRAYER

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—President Roosevelt proclaimed January 1 as a National Day of Prayer for "strength and guidance" for the problems of widening warfare and for the responsibilities of increasing victory.

The text of the proclamation made public today by the White House, follows:

"At the end of the year 1943 which has not only made manifest the devotion and courage of our nation's [illegible] but has also crowned their efforts with brilliant success on every battlefront it is fitting that we pray to be preserved from [illegible] pride of accomplishment and from willful neglect of the last measure of public and private [illegible] necessary to attain final victory and peace.

"May we humbly seek strength and guidance for the problems of widening warfare and for the responsibilities of increasing victory. May we find in the infinite mercy of the God of our Father some measure of comfort for the personal anxieties of separation and anguish of bereavement.

"Now, therefore, I, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, do hereby appoint Saturday, the first day of January, 1944, as a day of prayer for all of us, in our churches, in our homes, and in our hearts, those of us who walk in the familiar paths of home, those who fight on the wide battle fields of the world, those who go down to the sea in ships, and those who rise in the air on wings."

MACHINISTS' STRIKE THREAT TO BREWERS

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Dec. 8—Beer production in this one of three principal brewing centers of the United States wsa threatened today by strike of machinists at six major breweries.

In simultaneous action, 400 workers affiliated with district 34, International Machinists' Union (AFL) failed to report for work at the Metal Specialty company, engaged in production of navy cartridge cases, and 20 more at six breweries: Weidemann, Hudepohl, Burger, Red Top, Clyffside and Bruckmann.

Meantime, production of Navy and Army ordnance materials remained crippled at the Huge Trailer Company of America plant in industrial Oakley, the result of what spokesmen termed a jurisdictional dispute between the AFL, which has a contract with the firm, and the United Automobile Workers (CIO) winner of a bargaining election last July. An estimated 1,000 men have been out since Monday.

J. C. Chapman, AFL machinists' business agent, termed the metal specialty strike—the fourth this year—a "double-edged affair," because of asserted failure of the war labor board to approve a three and one-half cent an hour increase in basic wage "and difficulties with the company over supervision of the men." The workers, Chapman said, seek a 69½ cent hourly basic wage, which, with a current bonus would net them approximately 93 cents an hour.

The WLB, Chapman added, "has approved, then cancelled the increase several times."

Turks' Entrance Into Allied Camp Important Victory

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The winning of ultra-conservative Turkey into "closest unity" and "complete identity of interests" with America, Britain and Russia represents one of the major bloodless victories of the war, for there are few places of greater strategical importance than the territory and waters under Turkish control.

There's a double significance in this event, which was the outcome of a meeting between Turkey's President Ismet Inonu and Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill in Cairo. Apart from the moral and perhaps material strength acquired by the allies, this agreement seems to me to mean that there must have been an ironing-out of long-standing and dangerous suspicions between Ankara and Moscow. This thought is strengthened by the fact that while Marshal Stalin himself couldn't be present, he joined in inviting Inonu to the parley, and thus gave the session his official blessings.

Looking at the thing from all angles, I would say that the hand-shaking between the Muscovites and the Turks is a matter of greater moment even than the further cementing of the Anglo-American and Turkish friendship. That's so because the hard-eyed way the Russians and the Turks have watched each other play their cards has made other nations uneasy.

Gateway to Russia

The point has been, of course, that the Turks control the Dardanelles—the famous strait which provides the only gateway the Russians have between the Black sea and outside waters.

Naturally Moscow has wanted to ensure her perpetual use of this waterway, which is more priceless than as though filled with molten rubies. Great wars have grown out of far less than that.

So it's good to see the Turks and Muscovites smiling at each other. The pot of gold at the end of that rainbow will be a friendly adjustment of the status of the Dardanelles.

Does this Turko-allied agreement mean that the Ottomans are going to join us in the war? Hard and fast conclusions on that question might be risky. I think the position is about like this:

The Turks appear to have given their outright allegiance to the United Nations. The indications are that Ankara is prepared to get into the war with both feet, if the allied really need this additional military aid. Such a situation might arise from the projected all-out offensive against Hitler, and a call from the allies likely would set the Turkish armies marching.

Still Lack Equipment

However, while the Turks have been modernizing and reequipping their forces with the aid of Britain and the United States, they still lack the equipment they would like to have for war against the Hitlerites. Also, Turkey's territory in Europe, north of the Dardanelles, is vulnerable to heavy assault from the Germans occupying the neighboring Balkan areas. Furthermore, don't forget that the Nazis hold the Aegean islands off the Turkish coast, or that the great, straggling city of Istanbul (Constantinople) lies wide open to attack by German bombers.

So I think we can say that the Turks probably are on call for active service, if and when needed. Meantime one would expect that they at least would grant the allies valuable bases and free passage through Turkish territory if we should need it.

Thusfar it has served the allies far better to have Turkey neutral. If the Turks had joined the United Nations prior to the Italian collapse, while the axis was still master of the Balkan peninsula, there would have been a strong possibility that the Hitlerites might break through Turkey into the Middle East, thereby upsetting a very large dish of allied fat into the fire. Had it not been for the great water barrier of the Dardanelles, Hitler likely would have risked Turkey's million bayonets in any event.

Vast credit must go to Britain for the allied-Turkish love feast. It's safe to say that Ankara's friendship for England was largely responsible (1) for Turkey's refusal to join the Germans as in the last war, and (2) for this final declaration of solidarity with the United Nations.

625 DEER HUNTERS ON GAME PRESERVE

By The Associated Press

PORTSMOUTH, O., Dec. 8—The daily limit of 625 hunters yesterday again entered the Roosevelt-Shawnee game preserve where more than half the opening day bag of 33 deer were shot Monday as Ohio's first deer hunting season in 50 years got underway in Scioto, Pike and Adams counties.

Hayden Olds, assistant chief of the game management section, department of conservation, said 16 deer were checked out of the preserve Monday and that at least 14 others were reported shot outside the preserve.

Olds said not more than 150 hunters were in line for special one-day permits to hunt in the preserve as the gates opened at 5 a. m. But later arrivals swelled the total to the limit of 625, a ratio of approximately one hunter for each 100 acres in the sanctuary.

More than 800 hunters were on hand for the opening Monday and those in line after 625 had been admitted were turned away.

Olds said because the early morning waiting line had diminished, gates would not be opened until 6 a. m. (EST) during the remainder of the season which ends Dec. 18.

Harding High Cagers Drop Close 31 to 29 Contest To Columbus North

Visitors See Lead Cut To Slim Margin As Game Ends.

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

For better than a week [illegible] fans had an inkling of what sort of an outfit Columbus North would bring here to [illegible] Marion Harding [illegible] were questioning [illegible] of the Capital City club.

[illegible] at Edison gym [illegible] the Polar Bear five, a definite pre-season darkhorse and [illegible].

North, displaying classy [illegible] and favored by a slight [illegible] advantage in [illegible] the scrappy Harding Presidents [illegible] a 31 to 29 [illegible].

North had the finesse and polish and the locals had the fight and [illegible]. The Polar Bears' [illegible] passing [illegible] offense and superior ball handling and passing handed the Presidents their first defeat [illegible] season [illegible] two starts [illegible] of Dewey Boyher's [illegible] brought in a Frank Merriell [illegible].

Earl Hickman's North team held a 15 to 11 lead at intermission and a 24 to 20 at the three-quarters' mark but the last period, featured by an impressive uphill battle staged by the Prexies, almost put the locals ahead for the first time in the game. The last President basket by Rex Kilbourn, which made the score 31 to 29 in favor of North, came only 17 seconds before the contest-ending gun. The Polar Bears called a time out after this tally and decided upon the most logical course to follow—freeze the ball. That they did and well enough to still be in possession of the sphere at the game's conclusion.

Fazio Leading Scorer

Although North had had the better team score, which in the last analysis is what counts, on the Harding side of the scoreboard was the game's leading individual scorer, Center Chuck Fazio with 11 points. This total gives Fazio, who also was big man in the opening Delaware game with 10 markers, a two-game count of 21 points. Dale Bonnie, senior Columbus forward, paced the victors with nine points, including four goals and a foul. Fazio rang up four baskets and three free throws.

Along with Fazio, Forward Fritz Guy and Bill Williams, substitute senior guard, shone brilliantly for the Presidents. Guy racked up eight points and Williams six. The performance of Williams was particularly unexpected since he was not on the cage squad last season and didn't see much action against Delaware. Two of his baskets were humdingers from mid-floor—one of them actually was longer than that. In addition, Williams was alert and wide-awake on defense as he speedily cut in on many North passes and stalled numerous basket attempts.

Dave Bonnie, husky North guard, tore open the scoring package in the first quarter, with a dribble-in shot which gave the Polar Bears a lead which was not thereafter obliterated. The only instance where Harding was tied with the visitors came several seconds after Bonnie's opening basket with Fazio clicking on a side-shot. Dale Bonnie then added two points for North on a lay-in try. Ralph Pryor, North's stellar Negro forward who was pretty well bottled up by Guard Elvin Beach, put through two points on a sucker shot. Dave Bonnie again connected, this time on a dribble-in. Pryor came back with a one-hander from 20 feet. Harding started to get back in the game with Fazio dropping a free throw, following a foul called on Captain Jack Jennings, North pivot man. Guy flipped through a set shot from the side for Harding. First quarter scoring ended with Dale Bonnie sinking a dandy sucker shot.

Williams Tallies

Fazio began the second period for the Prexies with a lay-in, and added a free throw on a another penalty called against Jennings. Bill Williams dropped in his first tally of the evening as he neatly snatched the ball from two North men and dribbled in for the bucket with faculty. Rex Kilbourn then was off on two charity throw attempts. Jennings, highly touted center, made his only point of the game on a free throw. Dave Bonnie banked in another basket for the Polar Bears. Guy swished in a free throw and missed his next foul-line try as the half ended, with North sporting a 15 to 11 lead.

It was Dale Bonnie again scoring as the third period commenced on a free throw. Fazio registered for Marion on a side shot. Bill Donally, subbing for Jennings who at this stage had three personal fouls charged to him, made a sucker shot. George Williams broke into the scoring column for the Capital community invaders with a lay-in good for two markers. Guy tabulated two for Harding on a dribble-in. North extended its lead as Pryor and Williams each added a point from the free toss circle. Dave Bonnie landed for two tallies. Bill Williams checked off his first long shot from mid-court. Guy slipped in another free throw. Fazio laid in two points as third stanza point-making came to a close.

As a starter for the final quarter, Donally recorded a one-handed side bucket. Bob Virden, forward replacement for Rex Kilbourn, chalked up his first points of the season on a set-shot. Dale Bonnie pivoted and ripped through a one-hander from the ten second line. Williams of Marion sank his second and last lengthy basket for the night. Fazio, after missing fire on his first free toss try, plopped in the second. Kilbourn failed to make a foul attempt for the Prexies and Williams added a one-pointer for the visitors. Two free flips were missed by North and Guy then laid in a two-pointer for the locals. Dale Bonnie made it 31 to 27 with a push shot. Kilbourn nicely dropped in No. 29 for the Prexies but it was a trifle too close to the end of the clock's course. North tenaciously iced the ball and the game.

This was North's season inaugural. Harding, which won its opening fray with Delaware 32 to 14 takes on Bexley at Bexley Friday night.

As a preliminary to the varsity clash, two Harding sophomore outfits staged an intra-squad battle for the spectators. The 'Black' team, headed by Don Shirk with 15 points, downed the Irish Place Two on AP's 1943 All-Star Team

By CHIP ROYAL
AP Features Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 8—There was a popular song in World War I that went something like this: "The Navy took you over and the Navy will bring you back!"

The first part of that little ditty is what happened to college football this year—the Navy took over.

In fact, Navy men went so far as to grab nine places on the 19th annual College All-America football team chosen today by the Associated Press Sports Editors and writers throughout the United States. The Army landed two men despite its refusal to permit students to participate in intercollegiate athletics.

All of which recalls a recent statement made by a top football coach. Asked to name an All-America team, the mentor said:

"Pick any two sailors, two coast guardsmen, two merchant mariners, two soldiers, a marine, a flier and a paratrooper—and how can you beat them?"

That statement goes double for THE All-America. How can you go against these selections of the country's top sports writers when you look at the records?

On the ends are Joe Parker of Texas, a Navy medical student, and Ralph Heywood, a Southern California Marine V-12.

The tackles are Jim White, Notre Dame, Navy V-12; and Pat Preston, Duke, Marine V-12.

The guards are John Steber Georgia Tech, Navy V-12, and George Brown Jr., United States Naval Academy Junior.

Lined up over the ball at center is the brilliant West Point captain and senior, Casimir Myslinski.

The backs are Bob Odell, Pennsylvania, Navy V-5; Creighton Miller, Notre Dame senior, who was given a medical discharge from the Army just before Notre Dame played its first game; Otto Graham, Northwestern, Navy V-5, and Bill Daley, Minnesota's gift to Michigan by way of the Navy V-12 class.

Notre Dame Places Two

Notre Dame, voted the top football team of the nation since the start of the season, has placed two players on the first team and two on the second. Minnesota placed Bruce Smith and Dick Wildung on the big team in 1941.

Out of a total of 33 places on the All-America squad, the midwest landed 12 men. The east, with West Point and Annapolis holding sway, grabbed eight positions, three of them on the No. 1 team; the south, six; the far west, four; the southwest, two and the Rocky Mountains, one.

No matter how much a fan roots for the thousands of football players all over the country, he must admit that White is the top lineman and Miller, the most rip-snorting back in the country. Their opponents have been shouting it all season.

Preston, a Wake Forest transfer, also is a standout among tackles. Weighing 205 pounds, three less than the Irish stalwart, Preston is one of the speediest men to climb into Blue Devil football togs.

As for Miller, so many players, coaches and football writers have classed this seventh son of an illustrious South Bend family as the hardest guy to stop this year, he is practically a unanimous choice.

Creighton's speedy elusiveness in those fast-opening plays of the Irish was everything that beauty should be. In fact, all those would-be tacklers are still moaning that Miller was the hardest man to bring down.

Daley is another speedster. While playing for Minnesota in 1942 he moved his 200 odd pounds over the century course in 10 seconds and gained honorable mention on two All-America squads.

Graham Called Greatest

Moving along to Graham, midwest football fans are calling him Northwestern's greatest back since the heyday of Pug Rentner in 1932. Otto was a power whether he was running, passing, kicking, receiving, blocking or tackling — a six-threater in every sense of the hyphenated word.

Bertelli can blame "Dead-eye" Johnny Lujack for not making the All-America. If Angelo had been able to finish out the season, it's dollars to doughnuts he would be on the first team. But, when Lujack stepped into his shoes for the toughest games on Notre Dame's schedule, and it made no difference, to the Irish, it made Bertelli just another passer.

Odell couldn't be beat on the defense.

BATTLE ROYAL

IRISH McGEE

A slam-bang battle royal program is in store for Marion wrestling addicts at the Armory arena on West Church street Thursday night.

Featured in the six-man gang fight are Jack Bloomfield of New York City and Irish McGee of Seattle, Wash. Both men are well known to the local mat following but neither have appeared in Marion for several months.

They'll team against Whitey Walberg of Minneapolis, Gil La Crosse of Toledo, Joe Ferona of Boston and Dory Funk of Hammond, Ind., a quartet of recent regulars.

These six assure Marion fans a sensational match. Funk and Walberg especially have remarkable records in the Marion ring. Dory, Marion fans recall, is the youthful star who got his start as a University of Indiana star under Coach Billy Thom.

Tickets may be purchased in advance at Markert & Lewis on East Center street.—Adv.

Dr. Rea Named Academy Head

Dr. Frederick Rea was elected president of the Marion Academy of Medicine in the annual election Tuesday night at City hospital.

Also elected were Dr. John A. McNamara, vice president and Dr. R. L. Morgan secretary and treasurer.

Mrs. Margaret Bradbury, recently appointed superintendent of the hospital, talked on changes necessary when the new wing of the building is opened. She listed equipment that will be necessary and appealed for aid from the doctors.

She concluded by outlining the routine she hopes to establish after both the new and old sections are in operation.

HEALTH QUIZ

	YES	NO
Do you have poor digestion?	☐	☐
Do you feel headachy after eating?	☐	☐
Do you get sour or upset easily?	☐	☐
Do you feel tired—listless?	☐	☐

Now everyone knows that to get the good out of the food you eat—you must digest it properly. But what most people don't know is that Nature must produce about two pints of the digestive juice—liver bile—each day to help digest your food. If Nature fails—your food may remain undigested—lie sour and heavy in your digestive tract.

Thus, it is simple to see that one way to aid digestion is to increase the flow of liver bile. Now, Carter's Little Liver Pills start to increase this flow quickly for thousands—often in as little as thirty minutes. When bile flow increases, your digestion may improve. And, soon you're on the road to feeling better—which is what you're after.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's aid digestion after Nature's own order, when taken as directed. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills today—at any drugstore—only 25¢. You will be glad you did.

Harpist and School Choir Win Applause in Concert Program

A guest harpist, Lynne Wainwright Palmer of Ann Arbor, Mich., and the Harding High school a capella choir provided an evening of delightful music for the December meeting of the Marion County Federation of Women's Clubs last night in the First Presbyterian church. An audience of several hundred club women, patronesses and guests heard the program, presented at 8 o'clock.

It was Mrs. Palmer's first appearance in Marion as a program artist and she captivated her audience with her music and charm. The choir, whose appearance on a federation program has come to be looked forward to as one of the year's treats, upheld its record of outstanding excellence despite the fact that with a few exceptions it is an entirely new group of singers and their first public program.

Mrs. Palmer, who is head of the harp department at the University of Michigan, opened the program with a group of three numbers, "The Harmonious Blacksmith," Handel; Gavotte from Iphigenia in Aulis, Gluck and Grandjany; Corelli. When she returned to the platform for her second group she played "En Bateau," Debussy; "Prelude in C Major," Prokofieff and two French folk songs, "Etron, ton, ton petit patapon" and "Il bon petit roi d' Yevetot," both by Grandjany. If it could be said the audience enjoyed any one part of the program more than another it was "Deep River," transcribed by Salzedo, and the concert variations on "Adeste Fideles" by the same composer with which Mrs. Palmer closed her part of the program. Prolonged applause brought her back to the program to play "Night Breeze" by Salzedo.

Under the capable direction of L. G. Jones, music director of the public schools, the school choir of more than 65 voices gave a splendid account of themselves in their part of the program. Three sacred numbers were chosen for the first group. They were "Lead Kindly Light," Pugh; "Jesus Lover of My Soul," Holbrook, and "There Is the Greatness," Bortniansky-Aschenbrenner. For the second group they chose two spirituals, "Climbin' up the Mountain," arranged by Smith, and "I Want To Be Ready," Cain, and the third number was "The Lord Bless You," Lutkin. The warm applause of the audience indicated an encore would be welcomed. Robert Somerlot, a junior, was the tenor soloist. The members, wearing maroon robes with white, monogrammed stoles, occupied the choir loft for their part of the program.

Mrs. Palmer, a family friend of Mrs. Harold K. Mouser, chairman of the federation's program committee, was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Mouser at their home on South Prospect street, during her stay here.

—BOWLING—

300 AT FISH AND GAME GROUP SUPPER

Galion Man Wins Award in Pheasant Contest.

Approximately 300 persons attended the annual game supper of the Marion County Fish and Game association in the Eagles hall, Tuesday night.

James Fetter, Harold Magers, Ralph Bond and William Rizor were elected trustees. They will meet next Monday night with present trustees to elect an association president for the coming year.

John McAdams of Galion won first place in the pheasant tail feather contest with a 26 inch feather. Second place was won by George Reynolds of LaRue and E. H. Christman of Marion was third. For placing first McAdams was awarded a lifetime membership in the association and a five-year subscription to the Ohio Conservation Bulletin. Bob Edy, F. J. Wilson, Z. G. Murray, Mike Ross and Ronald Arndt were runners-up in the feather contest.

O. H. Neimeyer, deputy Marion county game protector, spoke briefly on the shortage of game this year, attributing it to the presence of large numbers of crows and foxes in the county this year.

Plans for a fox hunt following the rabbit season were discussed and will be acted upon at the next meeting.

TAXES OR INFLATION SEEN AS CERTAIN FOE

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 —[illegible] [illegible] that taxes [illegible] [illegible] Senator O'Mahoney, Democrat of Wyoming [illegible] charged an [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] as the [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible]

O'Mahoney, [illegible] [illegible] Mobilization director [illegible] F. Byrnes [illegible] [illegible] issue before [illegible] [illegible] going to keep down [illegible] [illegible] said.

"We can avoid inflation [illegible] the same time [illegible] [illegible] exist by [illegible] [illegible] and holding it [illegible] worked out on the [illegible] equality."

While existing controls call for stabilization of wages and prices generally at the levels of Sept. 15, 1942, O'Mahoney contended inequities had grown out of the administration.

"We find ourselves in the position described by Justice Byrnes solely because we did not [illegible] an all-out price control [illegible] at the beginning, covering [illegible] and all other living costs," Bernard M. Baruch [illegible] said. "We ought to do it now."

However, there was little indication Byrnes' appeal to the nation to guard against inflationary steps had wrought any change in congressional sentiment on food price subsidies, railway wages or other related issues now to the fore.

Byrnes, hitting at proposed legislation to ban food price subsidies, to raise prices of milk and oil, and to lift railroad wages, said:

"If we do not hold the line now, I confess I do not know how or where we are going to hold back the flood gates of inflation. There are no prepared positions to which we can retreat. Some talk of controlled inflation. Such talk is just as criminally reckless as a proposal for a controlled flood or a controlled forest fire or a controlled epidemic of smallpox."

Senator Bankhead, Democrat of Alabama, predicted early senate passage of a house-approved bill to end subsidies Jan. 1. Friends and foes agreed to conclude hearings before the banking committee Friday.

Byrnes declared "if congress kills subsidies * * * it will immediately increase food prices seven per cent and the cost of living more than three per cent."

A few hours before Byrnes went on the air, the senate agriculture committee voted for a cent-a-quart increase in milk prices. The senate itself put off until tomorrow a vote on the Truman committee bill to grant non-operating railroad workers a flat 8-cents-an-hour raise in place of the 4-to-10 cent sliding scale approved by Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson.

Denies Special Probe of Gridders' Gambling

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Dec. 8—George Strickler, National Football League public relations director, denied today any "special investigation" was in progress concerning rumors that league players were associating with gamblers.

He added that the Washington Times-Herald, which published a story of such probe, had "misrepresented" its information to the league commissioner, Elmer Layden, and had "misquoted" Layden.

He said, however, the league constantly makes investigations of any rumors as a matter of course and rumors of an alleged player-gambler tie-up had been heard by league headquarters.

"An investigation was made long before the recent Bear-Redskins game and as far as I know it is closed," Strickler said. "It turned up absolutely nothing. There has never been the slightest bit of factual evidence to substantiate such charges."

OHIO WOMAN DIES

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8—Mrs. Belle Lee Ridenour, 40, wife of C. F. Ridenour, publisher of the Piqua (Ohio) Daily Call, died today after being found unconscious in her smoke-filled room at the fashionable Shoreham hotel. Coroner A. Magruder McDonald said smoke from a burning mattress apparently caused her death.

The Army reported less than 20 cases of typhus in the entire Middle East command during the first six months of 1943.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

MY FATHER took down his hands from behind his head and straightened his figure with an alert air which told me that my diffident suggestion had met with his approval.

"It couldn't be better," he said, then added more slowly—"as far as Milner is concerned. He, no doubt, remembers well the night when Noel knocked Steve unconscious because, following an after-theater supper—with Mary—at our behest—Steve appeared at the apartment, drunk, and brandishing a bottle of wine for 'a last drink'. He will understand Noel's prohibition as he wouldn't understand anything else. But Steve would be afraid to give Veritzen that excuse, the falsehood of which could be so easily proved."

Anything Will Do

"No, he couldn't use that with Phil," I said. "But almost anything else will do, for Phil is ready to pretend acceptance of whatever Steve says. Yet, I take it, you do not wish Steve's suspicions to be aroused, as they might be if I were to advise him to present too flimsy an excuse, and, also, the pretext must be strong enough to appeal to Milner, who will know at once that Steve could not use Noel's threat in his interview with Veritzen, but will wish to know and approve the reason which Steve does give to his employer."

I stopped, literally out of breath, but encouraged by the approving interest in my father's eyes.

"You have worked that out very well," he said. "Have you decided on the excuse that Steve can give to Veritzen for wishing to resign, one that Milner will consider plausible?"

Several Possibilities

"There are several," I said, a bit uncertainly, not realizing that my eyes must have gone to Dicky's in silent appeal until my husband broke in with an explosive ejaculation: "Eyes!"

"Eyes?" My father and I echoed the word in unison.

"Sure thing," Dicky said. "Steve must have a sudden affliction of the eyes, and his oculist must have prescribed rest, quiet, treatments that would interfere with his appearances, and also the wearing of dark glasses at all times. It is a plausible excuse which Veritzen can accept with apparent sympathy, which Milner can approve as a pretext for what he supposes to be Steve's real imperative reason for resigning. Eyes—there's your answer!"

"Oh, Dicky, you've hit it!" I cried, and my father nodded.

Eyes It Is

"I agree with Margaret," he said. "Eyes it is, and so everything is settled. You are all ready now to go to Steve, are you not, my dear?"

"As ready as I'll ever be," I said. "I remember all your instructions, and know what I am to propose to him. I also know that I am to be well guarded, but I shall be watching him closely every instant. So the sooner I start, the better I shall like it."

"You shall start the instant Hanson notifies me that Redfield has checked in," he said. "And as there's absolutely nothing any one of us can do before then, suppose we sink deeper into our chairs and relax. Carolyn's asleep, and Ronald's on guard in the next apartment, so it would be inadvisable for you to go back there, even if you wished."

No Inclination

"I haven't the slightest inclination to go anywhere," I told him smiling.

And then Dicky suddenly looked at me intently.

"I've got something on my alleged mind," he said, "that's been troubling me since I heard that cock-eyed story of Carolyn's second-hand from you. Oh, I don't mean that I disbelieve a word of it. But there's a pretty problem of psychology in it. D'ye mind if I trot it out?"

"Go ahead," my father said encouragingly.

"Of course I don't mind," I contributed, and Dicky drew a long breath as if he meant to make his speech a lengthy one.

"It's just this," he said. "I can understand Carolyn's carrying a torch for Rico—her feather head couldn't be expected to hold any sense. But she's always adored her brother, and her room-mate and best friend, Marion, was engaged to Ronald, and yet she never seems to have turned a hair when Marion pretended to have fallen for Rico's friend Tony. I ask you,—how come?"

YOUR HEALTH

• • •

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Aviation Medicine

The following quotation from a book "Psychology in Aviation," by Dr. Chalmers L. Gemmill (published by C. C. Thomas, Springfield, Ill.), will give you some idea of some of the things the aviation doctor is up against.

"Expansion of Intestinal Gas.—In an ascent to 38,389 feet, one volume of gas originally in the intestinal tract at sea level now occupies 5 volumes. This expansion of gas causes distention and abdominal discomfort in the aviator ascending to such altitudes and may cause respiratory and circulatory distress if the expansion of the gas forces the diaphragm to push up on the heart and lungs."

Aviation medicine, per se, is a brand new science, and while many of its pressing problems have been solved, there are still plenty that are proving hard nuts to crack. Man is a terrestrial animal. You can tell that by his design—his anatomy. And not only that, he originated at sea level and that is where he is still most at home. To send him ten, twenty or thirty thousand feet in the air is to discombobulate his physiology entirely.

One of the aviation problems not yet solved is that of the "bends." When air pressure is changed comparatively rapidly, bubbles of nitrogen are forced out of the blood vessels into the muscles causing cramps. The deep sea diver who has worked an hour or more under pressure is brought to the surface gradually in a closed chamber in which the air pressure is slowly brought back to surface conditions.

The aviator cannot be put in an air tight chamber. The nearest solution to the problem, I am told by Dr. John F. Fulton, of Yale university, who is directing the researches, is that there is a method by which the men who are not likely to get the bends can be selected from a group.

But the aviation medicos are not the only men in the military medical and surgical fields who are having problems. This war is like no other war in the destructiveness of the weapons, and the shattering effect on men's nervous systems.

Take a boy brought up in one of the cities, villages or on one of the farms of our land—he was not raised to be a soldier. Throw him into a combat area and some of them just get mad enough to eat it up and some can't take it.

In about 53 per cent of the latter it goes to the stomach or bowels. They have diarrhoea or they throw up. It's perfectly natural. The old saying about a distressing spectacle—"It made me sick to my stomach"—applies. But what to do with them when they apply at a base hospital? The digestive disorder is merely a symptom of nerve shock. The patient will never be any good for combat service again.

My Great Uncle Heber told me once—"I got the diarrhoea at Gettysburg, and I ain't got over it for sixty years."

Republican Governor Takes Over in Kentucky

By The Associated Press

FRANKFORT, Ky., Dec. 8—"Our full strength must be put into the struggle of the nation for a complete victory in the war," Simeon S. Willis declared in his inaugural address as Kentucky's governor yesterday.

In a brief address frequently referring to the nation's vital struggle, the Ashland attorney whose Republican administration took over the Democratic regime, declared, "all of us love Kentucky and cherish her good name," and added:

"May we forget everything that tends to divide or to destroy, and go forward with faith to that bright day when peace shall return and peaceful pursuits shall regain for our people that happiness and prosperity which they so much desire and so richly deserve."

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, Dec. 9

ACCORDING to the lunar transits this should be a fairly active day if the energies and resources are utilized for the purpose of gaining steady progress in routine affairs, but there is a sign accelerating the social, domestic, affectional rather than the purely realistic and workaday. Pleasure, merrymaking and extravagant outlay of energies and funds in hospitality or celebrations may prove irresistible, similar qualities might be applied to influence business.

Those whose birthday it is may feel disposed to exercise its personal influence, assets and endowments on the pursuit of happiness, in entertainment, celebrations or other hospitable expressions, rather than in strictly commonplace and workaday labors. The lure is toward the expansion of the social, artistic, domestic or affectional life, although similar impulses might be applied to some lucrative efforts in business. In the latter there may be menacing factors calling for precaution. Shun extravagance and schemes in all relations.

A child born on this day although being sound, stable and dependable yet may have its social and professional aspirations actuating its endeavors. However, it should have a happy, successful and esteemed position in life.
